LEAGUE MEET HERE MARCH 15-16

"Our Town"

J. B. WHITE

Here's a hand for Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp! He sees the menace of drunken drivers on Texas highways and has been convincing Milam county juries. The suspended sentence law, badly administered here from the jury box, has laid down a few hurdles for him, but he has faith in the sanity of the people at large. One gets the impression that red hair in sprouting up from the vigor of youthful energy will get the job done. The lot of a prosecutor is hard. The responsibility is heavy. When the people more fully realize that security lies in a successful defense of society, law and government will be sacred.

Now comes a new thought on the immensity of our traffic toll. Southern Pacific Lines have released a survey made from news columns of Texas papers. Death ran rampant on Texas highways in 1934, says statistics released by the railway and Express Association of Texas. These accidents cover mainly truck casualties. Hundreds of unreported crashes have their toll, many no doubt resulting from getting alcohol in the wrong radiator.

The record shows that 515 persons lost their lives in accidents on Texas highways in which motor trucks were involved. This was an increase over 1933 of 153 deaths. Accidents increased 342 over the 1933 figure. A broken body by the roadside is not just another regrettable accident. It is a barbaric implication of reproachful, rampant murder that challenges every sensible citizen.

How astute these foreigners are. Just as we were beginning to think that our diplomats could not sit in on a conference without losing their trousers, at least, along comes one Howard Nicholson, author and former diplomat, who insists that four of the ten best leaders in international affairs, during the last twenty years, have been Americans. That's a slick way for the British to get us into another conference. Make us confident and proud of our ability as diplomats and then entice us to another table discussion of international affairs. How adroit is this British blarney!

Local business men may be interested in the fact that large mail order houses report gains over 1933. Some of the business that went to swell the total was sent to them by customers of firms in Cameron. Some of the goods ordered were in our stores and on sale at prices that compare with the mail order prices, everything taken into consideration.

Merchants cannot blame the buyer for all of this trade that is lost. In too many instances there are merchants who expect the Trade at Home idea to be a substitute for advertising, snappy service and efficient methods. Fortunately Cameron has capable merchants who know how to buy and how to sell and they are doing their part in building up the city as a trade center by offering the latest goods at prices that are competitive.

Here's a good title for a new song: "Dole 'em Boys, Dole 'em."

Green & Boedeker Givers Of Many Bargains In Sale

Herald readers welcome back this week the frequent advertising message of Green & Boedeker, enterprising and value giving merchants of Cameron.

The territory gets a message of savings in this issue now going to hundreds of new homes in the county. Merchandise has been stacked high for this late February and early March sale. "We have never had a larger stock," said Leland Green, "and we certainly appreciate the wonderful business our store gets from the people all over the county."

Confesses Brutal Attack On Aged Man To Rob

Maurice Bowling, 17 year old Gause youth, now at large following his escape from jail here with John Ward, companion in crime, left behind a gruesome confession in which he details how he beat and sought to kill for money, Burt Williams, aged farmer, on the Pin Oak road near Gause on December 4, 1934.

The mysterious attack remained unsolved until last week when Bowling confessed following his arrest and implication in the burning of the Gause school building last May. Both men are believed to have been making their way to a hideout in California. The car in which they made their escape from Cameron, a stolen machine, was found abandoned near Alpine Saturday morning.

Bowling said he stood in a store in Gause and saw Burt Williams, the aged man make a purchase. He took from his pocket a roll of money, later found to be about $300 of which Bowling got none. He said he made up his mind to kill Williams and rob him.

When Williams left town on his wagon of corn and went slowly down the Pin Oak road, Bowling left the store and followed, stalking his man. Part of the time he was in the road way behind the wagon and part of the time in the woods along the trail, waiting a chance to mount the wagon and strike a blow. He cut a black jack sprout about two feet in length, now bloodstained and in possession of the District Attorney. When the wagon had reached a safe distance from town, Bowling said he climbed up from the rear and walked across the corn to the seat and hit Williams a terrific blow.

Williams threw his right hand to his head. The next blow broke a finger. In all twelve terrific blows were rained on the head of the defenseless man who never saw his attacker. Bowling said he saw he could not knock him out with a black jack sprout, became frightened and ran into the woods. He went home and kept his secret, being much frightened, he said. Williams lay in a local hospital for days and finally recovered.

Bowling was arrested for his part in the burning of the school building and while making a confession to that, calmly detailed how he slugged the aged Mr. Williams with intent to rob him of his roll of money.

Escapees Held In Go West Car Deal

It was believed here Saturday by Sheriff Max Kennedy that John Ward and Maurice Bowling, youthful desperadoes who escaped jail early Wednesday morning of last week, were making their way to a hideout in California.

The belief was strengthened when the Chevrolet Coupe stolen by Ward and Bowling was found abandoned by the roadside near Alpine in Brewster county. The car belongs to Joe Luce of Cameron who left early this week to return it to Cameron.

The car was found by H. L. Wynne, constable at Alpine and the identification was made through license bureau operatives on information furnished by Sheriff Kennedy.

Ward and Bowling are charged with arson in connection with the burning of the Gause high school building in May 1934. They were on (See ESCAPERS on page 6)

'BABY FARM' STILL PUZZLE AS OFFICERS PROBE CASE

Developments have been slow in the investigation now being conducted by officers of the county since the discovery of a 7 months old white baby half buried in the wastes of the city dump grounds. Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp was being congratulated on his efforts to establish facts in the case. Other officers including Justice Womack Brashear, who viewed the body, and Sheriff Max Kennedy were co-operating in every way.

Indications thus far prove that other tiny bodies have been seen there in recent years but no solution has yet been made of the problem of Cameron's baby farm. The child found last Wednesday was a boy and had apparently been buried about 24 hours, says Justice Brashear, who has expressed great resentment over this spectacle of horror.

Any effort, he said, to confuse the body found last Wednesday with medical specimens seen at the dump site, is misleading. The child was not a specimen. On the other hand was approximately 7 to 8 months old and uncontaminated by preservatives.

Officers here said the disposition of unwanted babies is an age old problem and police records in every city in America tell a sordid story of little bodies abandoned in waste places. Meanwhile the investigation continues both out of desire to clear the city of such crimes and to re-assure public sentiment that the full import of the offense is understood.

CITY TO BE HOST TO COUNTY SCHOOLS

By E. A. PERRIN
Director General

The County Interscholastic League Meet will be held in Cameron March 15 and 16.

New interest has entered into these annual contests through the division of the county into community centers. The county contests should meet with greater response as the community meets will come on to the county meet.

Each year some dissatisfaction results because the rules are not generally understood. If each teacher would carefully study the plans and rules of the contest much unpleasantness for all concerned could be avoided.

I call attention to just four items which may cause misunderstanding:

1. Premium points do not count this year.
2. A contestant to participate in the county meet must have entered the meet of his respective community.
3. The Junior age for declamation (See LEAGUE MEET on page 6)

MRS. SAM HOUSTON BURIED IN CAMERON

Mrs. Sam Houston died at her home in Cameron early Friday morning February 22, after a lingering illness. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence by Rev. J. Coy Williams, pastor of the First Methodist church, with interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Houston was born in Marshall, Texas, was the daughter of Dr. Samuel Howell Cole and Mrs. Martha Elizabeth Cole. She came to Cameron when a young lady, met and married Sam Houston. To this union was born two children, one daughter, Jennie Wren Houston and one son, Jamie, who died at the age of seven years.

She had spent all her married life in Cameron excepting three years that she lived in Elgin, Texas. She united with the Methodist church when a young girl, and had lived a devoted and active member as long (See MRS. HOUSTON on page 6)

WILL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF IN 1935?

EXCESSIVE production of corn may be expected in the fall of 1935 unless a large percentage of farmers agree to hold plantings for the year within reasonable limits. It is pointed out by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The normal response to severe, though temporary feed shortages and high feed prices occasioned by severe drought is a planting of a larger than average acreage to corn the following year. At the same time, yields per acre usually return to normal and a record crop with low feed prices results. Then, after a year or two, livestock production, particularly of hogs, becomes excessive, and livestock prices also are forced down.

For example, in 1895 following the severe drought year of 1894, farmers increased their corn plantings by over ten million acres. The yield per acre followed the usual trend and returned to two bushels above average. As indicated in the above graph, a record crop resulted. On December 1, 1895, the price of corn was 25 cents per bushel as compared with approximately 45 cents per bushel the preceding year. By 1897, hog production had been greatly stimulated and prices were lower.

The 1935 corn-hog production adjustment program offered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration provides farmers with an opportunity for avoiding a similar reaction to the current drought situation.

The 1934 Income Tax Law

(By W. H. ROUSSEAU)

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of three articles explaining some of the important provisions of the 1934 income tax law, as they apply to the readers of the Herald.

(PART 1)

The present Federal Revenue Law applies in many ways to your income tax returns for last year, 1934.

The 1934 law as applied to income tax is new in many respects, and is said to be more complicated than any of the laws preceding it, certainly much more information and detail is required in preparing the average return than heretofore.

Under the 1932 law the normal tax rate on individuals was 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net taxable income after allowing for exemptions, and 8 per cent on all over that amount, with a graduated surtax beginning at $6,000, with 1 per cent for the first bracket of incomes from 6 to 10 thousand.

Under the 1934 law the 8 per cent item is eliminated and the normal tax is 4 per cent on all net taxable income after allowing for exemptions, and the graduated surtax begins at $4,000 instead of $6,000, but exemptions are also allowed before applying the sur-tax. The sur-tax rates are sharply increased with 4 per cent on the first bracket from 4 to 6 thousand, 5 per cent from 6 to 10 thousand.

8 thousand and 6 per cent from 8 to 10 thousand, until a maximum of 59 per cent is reached on incomes of one million dollars up.

The law carries a credit for earned income of 10 per cent against the normal tax, with a minimum of $3,000 and a maximum of $14,000.

This applies to salaries, commissions, fees and similar items for personal services, and to a limited extent to an individual in business for himself, where his personal service is an important factor in such business.

Joint returns of husband and wife must be made out in the name of both, and both are required to sign the return. Where this cannot be done, a proper power of attorney must be attached to the return authorizing either to sign for the other.

If you receive advice from any person in reference to preparing the return or any item in it, you are required to state on the return the extent of the advice, and from whom it was received.

If you employ someone to prepare the return for you, you are required to state on the return the name of such person or persons, and the source from which the information was furnished to or obtained by such person for preparing it, and the person actually preparing the return must also sign it under oath.

Any notary public preparing the return or in any way interested in it is prohibited from probating any signature to it.

Every return filed must have attached to it what is known as Form 1094, a small pink slip showing gross income, deductions, net income, and amount of tax paid or no tax. A penalty of $5.00 is to be assessed against every failure to file this form.

According to the law this form is to be filed in the office of the collector of internal revenue, and available to the public, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner.

ITALY WANTS TREATY

Italy is anxious for a reciprocal trade treaty. In 1929 we sold Italy $154,000,000 worth of goods and bought $117,000,000 worth. In 1933 the trade dropped to $61,000,000 and $38,000,000, respectively.

Black-Draught Brings

Refreshing Relief of Constipation Troubles

Constipation produces many disagreeable sensations, several of which are mentioned by Mr. T. E. Smith, of Boonville, Ind., who writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught many years when needed for biliousness and other minor ills when a laxative was needed. I have a tight feeling in my chest when I get bilious. I get dizzy and feel very tired, just don't feel like doing my work. After taking Black-Draught, I feel much better. This is why I continue to use it when needed." . . . Thedford's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, obtainable for 25¢ a package.

CUNNINGHAM SUPREME

SUSPENDING MISS WALSH

Max Baer is undoubtedly the talking champion of the ring. He ranks up to, if not ahead of the loquacious Dizzy Dean when it comes to telling the world how good he is. For example, Max says he is sorry he didn't come on the scene when Dempsey was the boss. He sure could have whipped his pal, Jack, and he asks "who did Dempsey ever lick?"

If he doesn't know we can give him the name of a couple of fellows who have an idea that Dempsey beat them.

Max is quick to tell the crowd that Schmelling's blow on the nose hurt him more than any other lick in the ring, but that the hardest day he ever put in was his bout with Uzcudun in Reno, where a split mouth gave him some trouble. He says he would still like to fight two opponents the same night and the estimate of the box office draw is right. No doubt the prospect of watching two championship fights on the same evening would lure the paying customers into the arena. Then, as Max says, if he won the first fight he would take on the second man and if he lost, the new champion would defend his title in five minutes. If he lost the second battle the new champ would be the world's short-time title wearer.

Lou Gehrig, who has been overshadowed by the Big Bambino, Babe Ruth, for many years, takes on new importance as the Sultan of Swat nears retirement. Last year Gehrig had a big year—won the batting title, drove in most runs and hit the most homers by getting 49. No wonder he lands an increase over his $23,000 for 1934.

The way Gehrig figures it out is that he is only 31 and that his best years are ahead. He is going after Ruth's home run figure, 60 in 1927, and feels that he is entitled to the pay that goes with his top position. And don't forget that Gehrig has played in more consecutive ball games than any other player.

Rabbit Maranville is anxious to play again this summer. Last year he was forced to the bench by a broken ankle but insists that he will be playing second base regularly for the Boston Braves. Maranville is undoubtedly a big asset to any team. He can bunt probably better than any man in the game and his spirit is valuable tonic for any collection of ball-tossers. Moreover, while his age is against him, we have to admire his fighting spirit and pull for his success, at least for one more year.

We find it hard to understand Connie Mack's blast against night baseball, about to be tried by some National League clubs. Mack says the night game will be a tiresome spectacle for the fans. His league decided that it wouldn't experiment but you can bet your old hat that if the thing goes big in the National the American league will fall over itself installing floodlights in 1935. The point in the argument is that the fans, for some reason, are not paying much attention to baseball in the day time. Why not try the evening.

Charlie Gelbert's comeback this spring will be watched with great interest by those who admire a fighting man. A few years ago Gelbert was a great short stop and then, in the winter of 1932, a charge of backshot all but blew off his left foot. He made a determined fight to save the leg and an equally brave campaign to get into condition. Now, it seems, that he may make the grade. Reported as out, probably never being able to walk, the word is that he is definitely on the road to recovery. The tough part of the story is that he is up against Leo Durocher, another great short stop but if he regains anything like his old form he won't have to stay on the bench. Somewhere there'll be a place for him.

Australia has its eyes on a Davis cup triumph this year and looks to Jack Crawford, Adrian Quist, Vivian McGrath and Don Turnbull to come through. Crawford has beaten Fred Perry consistently in Australia. With McGrath he has triumphed over the British doubles team, Perry and Geo. Patrick Hughes. The fact that the Australian team is being captained by Norman Brooks, who ranks high among the best players on the courts, is another reason for Australian optimism.

Another scribe attributes to Walter Johnson the statement that if "the fans and baseball writers of Cleveland get behind our team" the flag is about won. We join in the mysterious maze that envisions a bunch of fans and writers winning a pennant for any outfit although we would be glad to see the Big Train, a great player in his day, pilot the Indians, or any other aggregation, to the top.

Glenn Cunningham, the powerful Kansan, demonstrated his superiority over American milers again in the Baxter mile at New York recently. The race was never in doubt as he pulled ahead of the field at the back stretch of the sixth lap and pulled away from his pursuers. Once again Gene Venzke gave the crowd a thrill by running ahead of Bill Bonthron, the Princeton star, to win second place.

Miss Stella Walsh, holder of several world's sprint records, has been suspended for thirty days because she played with an amateur basketball team preliminary to a professional contest at Buffalo, N. Y., in January. This violates an A. A. U. regulation forbidding an amateur to be on the same program with professionals. Miss Walsh, whose Polish name is Walasiewicz, represented her native country in the 1932 Olympics. She holds the women's world record for the 60, 80 and 100 meter dashes and is near champion in hurling the discus. She insists that she did not know she was violating any rule when she made her Buffalo appearance, pointing out that "if I wanted to turn professional I could have done it long ago—and made plenty of money."

CHAPEL PROGRAM

The first part of the Chapel program Wednesday was dedicated to Texas Independence. Judge Gillis spoke to the assembly on Texas, bringing back memories of by gone days with their glorious tales of bravery and heroism. Every faculty member and student was proud of his heritage as a Texan and his privilege of carrying on Texas traditions in the biggest and most historic state in the Union.

The final part of the program was a report on the trip made by the judging team of the Future Farmers Club. Roy Mabry gave the report and it was interesting to hear of the splendid work that is being carried on in the Agricultural department under the supervision of Mr. Parnell.

NEW GYM ALMOST A REALITY

The rumors, which have been going around with increasing frequency as to the possibility of a new vocational and gymnastic unit to increase the working facilities of Yoe High school have almost become realities.

The City Council of Cameron has given its consent for the construction of the project if plans will not exceed the amount consented by the Council.

Everyone feels sure that the estimate on the unit will not be greater than that allowed by the Council.

The increase working capacity and the additional efficiency with which the Home Economics department and the Physical Education Department may be managed will more than justify the expense, time and thought which is going into the making of this project a reality.

TYPING TEAM SUCCESSFUL

The Yoe High typing team, under the direction of Miss Louise Green, carried off the honors at the practice contest held in Calvert February 21. Seven contestants from Cameron entered and Yoe High not only won first place but also team average for the entire group. This is proof that the team has been ably directed and will in all probability carry off some of the honors in the coming district meet.

The team average for the group was a score of 115 while Calvert had a score of 195.

The following students from Cameron participated and their individual scores are:

Katheryn Woodum	138.15
Margaret Lesker	132.6
Catherine Mode	127.42
Harold Jackson	112.
Alice Rylander	110.71

PROGRAM FOR BAND

The band of the Cameron Public Schools is going to have another benefit program March 8. The Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Love, will present two one act plays. The characters are:

Aunt Harriett—Alice Rylander
Lydia—Nancy Newton
Joe—Clinton Breeding

The second one act play, "Elmer," is a comedy of a family in which the younger sister of twins, who has had to wear their cast off clothes, finally has her day of triumph because of the truly "little brother" activities of Elmer. The characters are: Elmer, Earl Tracy; Susan, Emma Lee Burnett; Jeanie, Imo Lewis; Janie, Eloise Frisby; Miss Pippy, Doris Cammer; Mrs. Collier, Virginia Burnett; Fannie Belle, Elizabeth Dees; Herbert Brown, Roy Mabry; Russell Jameson, Frank Perrin; Pansy, the dog.

In connection with the program a hundred dollars worth of prizes will be given to the holders of the tickets with lucky numbers. The tickets will be on sale by the band boys and each ticket will have a number. Be sure and come out for an evening of good entertainment.

JANITOR DIES

Joe Navratil, janitor in the Cameron Public schools for eleven years, died Monday morning at his home in Cameron.

Mr. Navratil had been ill for the past few months but up until that time he had been on active duty in the school system.

It was with deep regret that his friends and acquaintances learned of his death.

DEBATE TEAM GOES TO ROSEBUD

The debating club of the high school engaged in another series of debates this week. The team went to Rosebud Tuesday, debated Reagan Wednesday evening, and debated Calvert the third time Thursday.

These debates are given for practice work. The members of the team are: Boys, Billy Gillis, John Martin; Girls, Gwendolyn Sanders, Mary Virginia Garbin.

FISH PARTY

The Freshmen Class of Yoe High School had their first party of the year Thursday night February 21 in the Ada Henderson gym. Guests included members of the freshmen class, their sponsors, Misses Robbins, Flinn and Love, Mr. and Mrs. Perrin and Bobbie Casey.

The gym was attractively decorated in the Freshman colors, green and white, with green paper fish around on the walls, the piano, and several of the tables.

Fish games such as: A fishing trip, a fish pond, fish net, fish relay, etc., were played throughout the evening. After the fishing trip the two individuals who "caught" the most fish chose groups for the succeeding games. The fish caught in the fish pond gave names to each freshman for the evening. After the games "sinks" in the form of doughnuts and a fisherman's "brew" (hot chocolate) were served.

was she who first heard the horse's hoofs that set her blood to running cold, but unafraid and unflinching, she pulled the trigger, for love of a highwayman.

—Nell Vaughn.

WAITING FOR THE HIGHWAYMAN

The moon was very high and Bess, the landlord's daughter, found it very easy to see out the window and over the moor. The night was as day and the long strip of Gypsy's ribbon of a road wound around over the moor. The soldiers were restless.

When would he come? When would she hear once more that clear staccato of horse hoofs come riding up to her window guarded by death?

She could almost see his gallant form suddenly loom out on the horizon like a phantom in the night! Her bonds were so tight she could hardly move, her fingers were rigid and taut. Tense was her body as if waiting for something that was to come. One of the soldiers stirred.

Was it he at last? No; just the rustling of the trees inward and she must keep on watching, waiting—on into the night.

—Dorothy Perkins.

THE HIGHWAYMAN

You can tell by the descriptions of the costumes in "The Highwayman" that the time was about that of the American Revolution. Of course, in this age of gangsters and machine guns, a highwayman seems a very low and despicable person. But in those times when governments were bad, more often than now a highwayman might have come from a good family, might have a good education and might have been a very honorable person. As I see the highwayman, he was more of a Robin-hood than a villain, taking money only from the rich, and perhaps sharing his loot with the needy.

The dashing air of the Highwayman in this vivid poem by Alfred Noyes is demonstrated by the highwayman's romantic gesture of standing up in his stirrups to kiss his sweetheart's hair in the moonlight.

He always rode at high speed, as shown by the phrase "the white road smoked behind him." His dashing, elegant costume certainly shows a vanity.

—Caroline Chambers.

THE HIGHWAYMAN

"The Highwayman" is a poem written by Alfred Noyes. The theme of the poem deals with the love of the highwayman and his sweetheart Bess.

The Highwayman told Bess that he was going after a prize of gold and would return by night. Tim, the hostler, overheard them talking and carried the news to the British soldiers because he was jealous of the highwayman. The soldiers tied her up with a musket beneath her breast. They placed her in the window so the returning highwayman would see her and think all was well. They knelt beneath the window waiting to kill him. Bess managed to reach the trigger of the gun and shot its warning to the highwayman as she killed herself.

—Stone Garner.

THE HIGHWAYMAN

The Highwayman had a French cocked hat on his forehead and a bunch of lace at his chin. He had on a coat of velvet and breeches of brown doe-skin, which fitted without a wrinkle. His boots were up to the thigh. He rode with a jeweled twinkle, and at his side he had a pistol. He rode at night to the window of the landlord's daughter where they made love.

—Billy Bryan.

WAITING FOR THE HIGHWAYMAN

I am sure that every one sympathizes with Bess, the landlord's daughter, in the agonies she must have gone through as she waited for her highwayman lover.

Her watch previous to this had been anticipated with joy and happiness at seeing her lover. As she would sit in her window above the inn yard and speak briefly to the highwayman, it was only a reward for her faithfulness and watchfulness of his coming, and only comes to those young and very much in love.

Very contrary is her last vigil. Poor Bess knew that the highwayman would come to rescue her from the soldiers and she was determined to protect him if possible. This is a beautiful thought in that both were willing to sacrifice their lives for each other.

As Bess waited in the darkness with a gun at her breast, her every sense was whetted to greatest accuracy. She knew what the sound of horse's hoofs meant, and she met her coming to death without fear, and willing to give what she could. It would not be seen by the oncoming Highwayman.

The highwayman was loved so ardently by Bess that she was willing to sacrifice her life for his. As the hours passed, she tried to get her fingers on the trigger of the gun and warn her lover of his danger. She so continuously made efforts to reach it, her hands became covered with sweat or blood.

At midnight Bess heard the highwayman coming down the road and with one last mighty effort her finger reached the trigger and without pausing she pressed the trigger, shattering her breast. She had sacrificed her life to warn her lover.

—Douglas Perrin.

Gause Youths Confess Burning High School

Escape Jail Leaving Story of Crime Committed in 1934

Burning of the Gause high school on the night of June 11, 1934, for 8 months an unsolved crime, has been cleared up by Milam county officers in confessions made by Maurice Bowling, 17, and John Ward 18, of Gause, who said they were mad at the superintendent of the schools and set fire to the building to get revenge.

Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp has on file detailed confessions from both, each claiming joint responsibility for the job. Within five days after their arrest they escaped jail in Cameron and no trace of them has been found since their stolen automobile was recovered by a constable at Alpine last Saturday. Officers here express the belief they are on their way to a hideout in California.

When captured they will be returned to face charges of arson, the first such offense within the memory of many. Under the law, a jury may impose a penalty of from 2 to 20 years. The youths signed their confessions on Monday, February 18 and escaped jail on Tuesday night.

Bowling in addition to confessing his part in the burning of the school told in detail his attack on Burt Williams, aged man who was beaten as he rode along the Pin Oak road on a load of corn. Their confessions gave the following story of the crime:

On the night of June 11, 1934, a Home Demonstration Club party was held in the High School building. Both Bowling and Ward attended and enjoyed the program. Both were students in school. After the party was over they secreted themselves about the building, having made it up between them to do the job that night because they were mad at the superintendent. Ward pulled off his shoes and climbed up the screen over a first floor window and let himself in. Bowling waited outside. Ward then went to the front door and let Bowling in.

Together they gathered some waste paper and trash from the rooms and made a heap of rubbish beneath the stairway. In order to share equally in the revenge against the superintendent, each struck a match simultaneously and lighted the fire. They then left the building and retreated a hundred yards into a thicket nearby to watch. Presently they saw the fire was well kindled and in a few minutes the flames began to eat their way to the second story.

When the fire issued from the roof and began to light the countryside they retreated further into the woods and waited until the crowd gathered. They then joined the folks and enjoyed the excitement engendered by the burning building.

Ward was arrested on February

14 when he went to school carrying a .32 automatic pistol. The superintendent reported the matter to Adrian McCown, constable, who arrested the 18 year old desperado and brought him to Cameron. Other developments followed and soon District Attorney Camp had obtained a confession. Bowling was taken into custody three days later and he too made a confession about his part in the crime. Bowling was not attending school.

The building at Gause has since been rebuilt. It was estimated the building was worth about $12,000. The district collected $800 in insurance.

as her health permitted, and although for the past several years, when she had been confined to her home on account of ill health, she had been a great pleasure to her family and friends and spent much of her time reading good books and her most treasured of all books was the Bible.

She was of a quiet and gentle nature, and from childhood had been noted for her kindness and sympathetic nature. When a small child a poem was written and dedicated to her by a bedridden minister whom she often visited, as follows:

"A sweet little maid came tripping along,
Across the wide street with a lovely song;
In her hand she bore some beautiful flowers,
To lessen my pain in the long dull hours;
Her step was so light, her song so sweet,
Her touch was so tender on my fevered pulse beat.
Her eyes full of pity, the tears, they arose
As she pressed to my hand a beautiful rose;
In the book the rose I've carefully kept
From hands that destroy, and rude winds sweep,
But her deed in a book is written above,
In letters of light, in letters of love.
In my heart I've treasured her sweet lovely song,
I sing it through life, amid the great throng;
I'll sing it in Heaven, and praise the Great Word;
"How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord."

By request of the family the song was sung at the funeral by a mixed quartet: "How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord."

Mrs. Houston is survived by her husband and one child, Miss Jennie Wren of Cameron; two sisters, Mrs. Katie Lott of Dallas and Mrs. Jennie Ross of Cameron and several nieces and nephews.

Pall bearers were: Charlie Smith, Jeff T. Kemp, Roy Law, R. A. Tag, Jim Adams and Joe Bass.

Beautiful floral offerings came from many friends. Green Funeral Home directed arrangements.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank our good friends and neighbors who came to us in our time of sorrow to offer kind words and acts of sympathy. We especially thank Dr. A. S. Epperson for his faithful services and our friends who sent the beautiful flowers. May God bless all of you.

pointed by director general E. A. Perrin, superintendent of the Cameron schools, and adopted by the county Executive Committee.

Contests will be held in all the League events except extemporaneous speaking, essay writing, debate and music memory.

These community meets should create much local enthusiasm and should receive the patronage of the fathers, mothers and older brothers and sisters of the children participating in the contest.

The various schools have been notified from time to time of the actions of the county executive committee and I am sure that all is understood. However, since this is the first year of the community meets in the county, it is going to call for the full co-operation of participating pupils, their teachers and their parents.

The dates of the Community Meets are as follows: Maysfield, March 1; Milano, March 1; Buckholts, March 1; Thorndale March 7 and 8.

CAR DEAL

Blotch had traded to Henderson, it was said.

Deputy Sheriff McCall went to Houston and returned Henderson to Cameron. He was placed in jail Friday night and on Saturday released after hearing before Justice Bra-shear.

On April 18, 1931, Henderson was adjudged insane by a jury in county court, but was never delivered for keeping. There was no explanation readily to be made for this failure to place him as a ward of the state. He was subsequently released, it was said, when another effort was made to prove him sane.

Freddie plays the juvenile "David." Millions Have Read It

It is an adaption of a novel which has entertained millions, and was called by its author, Charles Dickens, "my favorite child."

Sixty five stars and featured players are seen in the unprecedented cast. Among the stars are W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Madge Evans, Maureen O'Sullivan, Edna May Oliver, Lewis Stone, Frank Lawton, Freddie Bartholomew, Elizabeth Allan, Roland Young, Basil Rathbone, Hugh Williams, Herbert Mundin—to mention only a few.

The picture has been well more than a year in preparation and production setting a new record for lavishness.

Novelist Plays Role

It is one of the few pictures on record in which the writer of the adaption, himself one of the leading novelists of the contemporary literature, plays one of the roles; the novelist is Hugh Walpole, the eminent writer and authority on Dickensians.

It has as producer and director the men who started the entire cycle of worth while stories on the screen: David O. Selznik, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, producer of Dinner at Eight, Dancing Lady, and Viva Villa! and George Zukor, director, who was associated with Selznik on Little Women and other hits.

It is an outstanding example of a famous book which is coming to the screen true in spirit and flavor to the original and without a trace of motion picture license.

INTRODUCING New Herald READERS

Hundreds Subscribe in Big Trend to Pioneer Journal

The publishers were glad this week to see the name of Joe Matula added to the big family of Cameron readers. He is among the large number who will receive their copies this week. Mr. Matula is held in high esteem by the postal service. He has been in the local postoffice for a number of years and his record is among the best in the department. Citizens here will recall with interest again that Mr. Matula before he went to work for the government, was employed by the city and was chief fireman because he drove the big American LaFrance truck to the blazes. Postal service work is interesting but not near so exciting as as thundering to the fires in a great motor like that. Mr. Matula will agree, Joe has an interesting hobby that of collecting stamps.

Mrs. Frank J. Pfirdrescher who lives in the Ad Hall Section was in Cameron last week end and called to have her Herald advanced another year. She says she enjoys reading the Herald and the publishers appreciate her reader support. Mr. and Mrs. Pfirdrescher live on their fine farm and enjoy the blessings of rural life.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Beal are among the many new Cameron readers this week, receiving their first copy. Mr. Beal was for many years a resident of Galveston and served on the police force in that city. In late years he engaged in business but for some time his health has not been good. The publishers welcome them to the reader list and trust they may find these columns interesting in 1935.

Mrs. Ray Westbrook will read the Herald in 1935. Her name was added to the Cameron list this week and she will receive her first copy. Mrs. Westbrook is in the office of the Hefley-Stedman Motor Co.

Philadelphia.—A "pipeless" pipe organ smaller than most pianos uses 900 automobile headlight bulbs, arranged in twelve circular batteries of seventy-five each, to create the 1,800 tones the electronic organ can produce. It was invented by Ivan Eremeeff, Russian physicist, and developed with the aid of Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra. It is movable and may be plugged in at any electric light socket, just like a radio or refrigerator.

The Industrial Growth of Texas

Parallels the Far-Flung Network of Central Station Power Facilities

TWENTY-TWO years ago the first electric power transmission line was built in Texas . . . by the Texas Power & Light Company, pioneering and laying the foundation for that type of electric service in this state. It was this pioneer effort and the extension of such facilities which followed that opened the door for Texas to realize a great benefit from the changing structure of American industry. As a result, forward-looking communities wielding the potent weapon of dependable and adequate power supply have won a wide variety of new wealth-producing industrial plants.

Literally hundreds of industries, dating their founding since 1912, now dot the industrial map of Texas. The close relation between their choice of location and the availability of dependable electric power is evident when the industrial map is compared with that showing the continually expanding facilities of central station power supplied through transmission lines.

Almost point for point and mile for mile, industrial growth has paralleled the extension of dependable power service.

These twenty-two years have seen the development of Texas as a textile manufacturing center; the movement for dairy products manufacturing come into being and flower into the thriving plants now active at many points; refineries, flour mills, clay products plants, cotton gins, oil mills, garment factories and many others built to add wealth and glory to industrial Texas. By far the greatest number of these new industries . . . virtually all those of important size . . . have, most significantly, located where they may avail themselves of an adequate supply of dependable and economical electric power, assured by transmission lines.

Always the Texas Power & Light Company has looked toward the requirements of the future. Thus an adequate and dependable power supply has been available, supplying industries, stores, homes and farms with the best type of service at reasonable rates.

This Company offers the assistance of its engineers to any community served by the Company in presenting its advantages to prospective new businesses and industries.

Texas Power & Light Company

Thousands of New Citizens

Compare the industrial growth of Texas from 1921 to 1930, when the last federal census was taken. The 3,566 plants of 1921 had grown to 5,198. The 1921 figure of 588,707 industrial wage-earners had been multiplied to 822,860 by the end of 1929! A great portion of these added employees were newcomers to their communities, swelling population, swelling local retail sales and swelling local wealth.

ABOUT YOUNG GIRLS AND POPULARITY

Dear Girls:

One of the favorite questions of the young girl today is "What can I do to be popular?"

There are many traits that make for popularity, but that of always being in good humor is perhaps the most important one.

A girl may be beautiful, witty, generous, etc., but if one knows that she is likely to be a "wet blanket" on a party, one is hesitant about inviting her.

On the other hand a girl may be ugly and not particularly clever, but if she is vivacious and jolly, she is very likely to be among those who are asked to everything.

Two of my young friends are perfect examples of these very different types.

Sally J., has everything it seems in the way of God given talents and Kuhn 100 acre tract for the Northwest corner of this survey; Thence North 60 East 1480 vrs to the Southeast corner of said 100 acre tract in the East line of the said L. F. Margaret survey for the Northeast corner of this survey; THENCE South 30 East with said East line 1610 varas to the center of said Walker's Creek for corner of this survey; THENCE down said creek with its meanderings to the place of beginning.

Being the same land conveyed to J. K. Freeman by John W. Gandy et ux by deed of date October 31, 1917, recorded in volume 142, at page 613 of the deed records of Milam County, Texas.

Plaintiffs are also the owners of Five Hundred Dollars Stock in the Cameron National Farm Loan Association, which the defendants claim.

Plaintiffs own all of said land in fee simple title and on the 31st day of January, 1934, they were entitled to the possession of said premises in and in possession thereof, and that the defendants, on said date did unlawfully enter upon and dispossess them from said premises and now withhold from them possession thereof. Plaintiffs further show that they are entitled to the rents from said premises for the years 1934 and 1935 and that the annual rental therefor is in the reasonable sum of One Thousand Dollars per year.

Plaintiff prays for citation and on final hearing for judgment for title and possession of said land and stock, writ of possession and Two Thousand Dollars rents, for general relief, etc.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, but have before said court on the first day of the next term hereof, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

WITNESS, PENN WOLF, Clerk of the District Court, Milam County, Texas.

Given under my hand and seal of said court in Cameron, this the 6th day of February, 1935.

PENN WOLF, Clerk, District Court, Milam County, Texas.

CCC CAMP STATISTICS

With 1614 camps, limited to 200 men each, the CCC is ready to enlarge if order comes. Something like 370,000 men, between the ages of 18 and 25, are now enrolled. Each must come from a dependent family and remit not less than $23 of the $30 pay to his family. In addition he gets clothing, food and shelter.

ONLY 1,000,000 ELIGIBLE

Basing its estimate on the number of persons above 65 getting relief, and those getting old-age pensions in states having such systems, the Economic Security committee thinks that fewer than a million persons would be eligible for old age pensions, and that the cost to the states would be about $111,000,000 annually.

ing to have a good time and she imparts her joy of living to others. Trifles never worry Mary T., and if she has more serious troubles she keeps them to herself.

Consequently if there is a choice between the two, people always say, "Oh, do ask Mary T., everybody seems to have a good time when she is along. Yes, I know Sally can be great fun, she is so witty and clever, but suppose she happens to be in bad humor? You know how sensitive she becomes when she doesn't feel well. She takes offense at the least little thing."

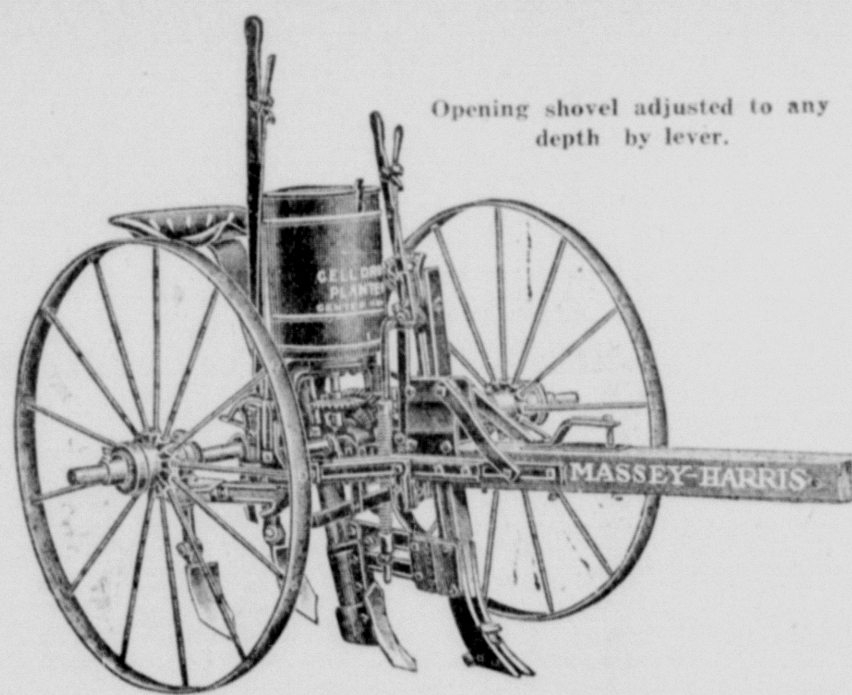

So if only one is asked, nine times out of ten it is the girl with the good disposition. And to my young friends let me say, that tact and kindness are things within the reach of all. We may not be beautiful, we may be clever, but we can cultivate an interest in other people and overlook many trifling acts and remarks that are not worth paying any attention to. And that is the first step on the road to a good disposition and indirectly, popularity.

International Sunday School Lesson for March 10, 1935.

Golden Text: "God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to him."—Acts 10:34-35.

(Lesson Text: Acts 10:34-48)

Up to this time in Peter's life Christianity had been almost exclusively of Jewish faith. All the early believers were Jews, who were moved with their contact with Jesus while alive or with him immediately after his death. Within a few years thereafter, once in a while a Gentile was converted but only as a side issue. However, with today's lesson the relationship of Gentiles in the new faith began to assume the proportions of a religious issue.

"Beyond the Pentecostal effusion the Church growth had been almost exclusively Hebrew," says G. Campbell Morgan. "There may have been exceptions, as scattered disciples preached Christ here and there, and Gentiles heard and obeyed, but the general movement had been Hebrew. Here, however, is the record of the particular case of a Gentile being won to Christ, which arrested attention, provoked controversy, and finally brought the Apostles and the Church to a recognition of the larger meaning of the work of Christ."

At Caesarea, the political capital of Judea, one of the Roman officers was a centurion named Cornelius. Like all other centurions mentioned in the New Testament he was an excellent man, full of piety, religious conviction and seeking earnestly after truth. His method of life was held up as an example to those around him. To this Cornelius, while at prayer, a message came directing him to send to Joppa for Peter, who was staying there with a tanner.

The following day at Joppa, some thirty miles away from Caesarea, while he was praying a vision of a great sheet let down from heaven with various beasts and birds in it, came to Peter. Commanded to eat, he refused because the Jews had been told to regard certain animals unclean. The voice said anything that God had cleaned was not to be made common. About that time the messenger from Cornelius came and, connecting the invitation to come to Caesarea with the message in the vision, Peter accepted the invitation.

"The point to be observed in this particular study is, how unconsciously men are being prepared for higher communications, wider services, deeper suffering, nobler sympathy," says Joseph Parker. "God leads us on step by step. He will send a stubborn Jew who had never eaten anything common or unclean to lodge with one Simon, a tanner. Having got him so far on the road, He will send him to a Gentile called Cornelius. The tanner is on the road towards the Centurion. We do not jump to conclusions in Divine Providence. We go forward a step at a time, and we never know how far we have advanced until we come to the last step, and find that it is but a step. Measured from the starting point it is a line longer than miles, but measured by the very last thing we did, it is only a step. This is God's way."

When Peter arrived at the home of Cornelius he found that this Roman had gathered his friends and kindred and they were all waiting "to hear all things that have been commanded thee of the Lord." Thereupon, Peter uttered the truth in our golden text and, although a Jew, recognized that it was the will of God to take these Gentiles into the new faith. "It was God who bade Peter break away from past traditions," says Archibald Alexander. "And in all Scripture I do not know a passage fuller of comfort for us, as we look out often with sinking hearts, upon the changes of doctrine and practice that are going on around us. I cannot think why the Church has not caught firm hold of this message and spoken of it with a trumpet in the ears of the disheartened. For here we have God himself engineering what his perplexed servant regards as nothing short of a revolution."

Another striking confirmation of the divine purpose was the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the Gentiles assembled with Cornelius, so much so that the Jews present were amazed and Peter asked if anyone could deny them the right of the faith if they had received the Holy Spirit. They were baptized in confirmation of their faith, not as pointed out by Professor A. T. Robertson, an outstanding Baptist biblical scholar: "It was clear that they were already converted before the gift of the Holy Spirit came upon them, though generation itself is the work of the Holy Spirit also. And this new birth had come without and before baptism, a fact that seems to escape the notice of those that hold that baptism is the means of securing the forgiveness of sins."

When Peter returned to Jerusalem he was criticised for associating with the Gentiles and eating with them but he justified what he had done by the divine visions which he had received. "Who was I that should withstand God?" asked Peter and the immediate response was gratification that "to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance with life." Ten years later, however, the issue as to proper status of the Gentiles in the Christian church caused a great argument. The leaders of the early church in the council of Jerusalem considered the matter and we have the last biblical appearance of Peter as an attendant at this deliberation.
